Albany International Airport is witnessing an increase in passenger traffic arriving from Florida.

Aircraft arriving directly from points in Florida today are operating at or near capacity.

JetBlue Airways and Southwest Airlines report that their Albany flights from Fort Lauderdale and Orlando are sold out for September 8, 9 and 10.

Hurricane Irma is expected to impact Albany departures this coming weekend.

Travelers are urged to consult their airlines or monitor the Airport's web site (albanyairport.com) for the latest flight information.

Albany's major airlines are offering those traveling to areas impacted by Hurricane Irma with the opportunity to rebook their flights.

Approximately 33% of Albany travelers fly to locations in Florida.
